

KEEP ON DRUMMIN'

James Magner, recently joined the Band. James has had previous experience with bands at the Shalom College. He is keen to learn the Bands Sequences and is being prepared for his first parade in June.

Guess who this is, his position on the Band Committee and which type of drum he plays. The first winning ticket will win a trip for 2 to the South of France. (YOU WISH!!!)

See President Ian to collect your prize.
HA! HA!

Ed. I will be away for 2 weeks, sailing the Whitsunday's out of Airlie Beach. Can't send a Post Card because I don't think we will pass a post office. But we will certainly have fun.

New Fee Structure

Playing Members now $60 per annum
Non-playing members $30 per annum

We can now count the playing members on the back of the hand. Let's ALL be involved in recruiting new drummers, Oh! And don't forget the Drum Majors"

The Importance of Band Practice Nights

Do your home work. If you're learning a new beat, practice it outside of the band's rehearsal time. If everyone is prepared, this gives you more time together and makes practice more enjoyable for everyone.

Be on time. Being late to practice takes time away from the rest of the band. It may also cause you stress, which can result in high blood pressure later in life, and perhaps your ejection from the band. Some groups charge their members a small fee for being late. A quarter or a dollar for lateness helps build a band fund that can be spent on a dinner meeting, party, or a repair fund if a piece of band gear gets broken. And if you're going to be really late, call one of the other band members to let them know!
